- Daniel Lemire et al., Roaring Bitmaps, 2014. (<http://roaringbitmap.org>)
I am one of the authors of several software libraries implementing the Roaring data structure (Java, C, C++, Go, Python, etc.). These libraries are used by Apache Spark, Apache Kylin (eBay's OLAP engine), Metamarkets' Druid, Apache Hive, Apache Tez, Netflix Atlas, LinkedIn Pinot, Pilosa, Microsoft Visual Studio Team Services (VSTS), Jive Miru and so forth. A reimplemention of this library is part of Apache Lucene, and used by systems such as Solr and Elastic. Lucene is the search engine used by sites such as Wikipedia.
- Daniel Lemire et al., JavaFastPFOR: A simple integer compression library in Java, 2012. (<https://github.com/lemire/JavaFastPFOR>)
A derivative of this library is part of Apache Lucene. The library was integrated in Apache Parquet and Apache NiFi. A modified version of the library is included in the search engine Terrier.
